Really...

A research study performed by Google found that 89% of people are likely to recommend a brand after a positive brand experience on their mobile device.

If you want to be more effective at attracting and retaining patients, you need an automated solution that allows patients to interact with you via text. Not just to chat, but to take automated action based on the content of the patient's message.

Utilizing the latest in messaging automation, Redde can now create family accounts and take payments, all via text.

Responsive Messaging will completely change your patient engagement strategy.
